Over the way,
Over the way, over the way,
I've seen a head that's fair and gray;
I've seen kind eyes deep as the sea;
A form of grace, though full of years,
Her fifty summers have left no trace—
And I, a youth of twenty-three,
So love this lady, that I
I want her for my mother-in-law!

Over the way, over the way,
I've seen her with the children play;
I've seen her with a royal grace
Before a mirror adjust her hair;
A kinder woman could never see;
God bless and cheer her onward path,
And bless all treasures that she hath,
And let her be my mother-in-law!

Over the way, over the way,
I think I'll venture, dear, to say,
(If you will lend a helping hand,
And succor the scheme I've planned),
I've loved in loving, reverent awe,
Down at the lady's feet, and say,
"I've loved your daughter many a day—
Please, now, let me be my mother-in-law!"

POLITE.—A "journeyman grammar smasher" is what one St. Louis editor terms another.

A Delaware man lost his wife and a racehorse by the same stroke of lightning, and he tried for two hours to revive the horse.

A charitable man keeps a pair of dogs chained at his front door, so that people who stop to "get a bite" can be accounted for without taking the trouble of going into the house.

An eminent judge said to a jury who had passed a sleepless night in their room, unable to agree on a verdict, "Gentlemen, I am surprised that you cannot agree in this case. I could agree either way in five minutes."

Atkins says that he never was smitten with but one man's wife. He is the man himself, and she smote him with a rolling pin.

Query.—What gentleman can, with any sense of propriety, ask a fat woman to lean on his arm?

We are told nothing was made in vain; but how about a pretty girl? Isn't she maiden vain.

The married ladies of a Western city have formed a "Come-Home-Husband-Club." It is about four feet long, and has a brush at the end of it.

Mr. Henry Yure, of Portsmouth, has eloped with his mother-in-law. The date of Yure will soon be over.

"Artaxerxes, my boy," said Mr. Marrowfat, "remember the dying words of Socrates: Never marry a woman that kicks sideways."

OUR OWN AND OTHERS' AFFAIRS.—Human nature is so constituted that all see and judge better in the affairs of other men than their own.

MARKS AND FACTS.—We should be much kinder to each other could we read hearts. If we knew the woes and butters and
